

5 August 2025

AIA Virginia Nominating Committee
C/o Paul R. Battaglia, AIA
Executive Vice President
AIA Virginia
P.O. Box 2626
Chesterfield, VA 23832
Via email: pbattaglia@aiava.org

Re: Letter of Interest, Nomination for Office of President-Elect

Members of the Nominating Committee,

Architecture has the power to shape the communities, culture, and economy of the Commonwealth, and AIA Virginia plays a vital role in advancing our profession's impact. I would be honored to serve as President-Elect, bringing collaborative leadership, strategic insight, and a commitment to ensuring our profession helps communities thrive.

Throughout my career, I've led organizations that connect design with public service. As President of Partnership for Smarter Growth, Vice-Chair of Storefront for Community Design, Chair of the Capitol Square Preservation Council, and Chair of Richmond's Commission of Architectural Review, I've built consensus, strengthened public understanding of the built environment, and championed policies that support livable communities. These roles have sharpened my skills in governance and advocacy—essential for this position.

While I've been an AIA member since licensure and participated in initiatives, this is a meaningful opportunity to serve the profession more directly. Encouragement from colleagues like former AIA Virginia President Lori Garrett, FAIA, affirms my belief that this role offers a chance to give back and reflect Glave & Holmes Architecture's ongoing commitment to the AIA. I'm grateful for the firm's full support.

If elected, I will work to strengthen member engagement, elevate advocacy, and support emerging leaders. I look forward to collaborating with officers, directors, and members to position AIA Virginia as an indispensable resource for architects and their communities.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Andrew B. Moore, AIA
Senior Principal

Andrew Moore, AIA, LEED AP BD+C

Richmond, Virginia | amoore@glaveandholmes.com | 804.649.9303

Current Firm Affiliation

Glavé & Holmes Architecture, Richmond, Virginia
Senior Principal & Director of the Civic & Community Studio

With more than 30 years of wide-ranging architectural experience, Andrew Moore is a respected leader known for his thoughtful, principled approach to design and his deep commitment to civic life. As a Senior Principal and Director of the Civic & Community Studio at Glavé & Holmes Architecture, Andrew guides projects that strengthen the identity and fabric of communities across Virginia and beyond. His work spans both public and private sectors and includes everything from the rehabilitation of a landmark historic courthouse to the design of a prominent new mixed-use development that integrates seamlessly into a well-loved Richmond neighborhood.

Andrew's design leadership is rooted in the principle of civitas—architecture as a civic act—and he has consistently demonstrated how buildings can contribute meaningfully to the public realm. His portfolio reflects a nuanced understanding of context, heritage, and placemaking, with a focus on the renewal of civic spaces through both preservation and innovation. Through his mentorship, advocacy, and practice, Andrew continues to shape the built environment with purpose and integrity.

Education

Bachelor of Architecture, Virginia Tech, 1994

Professional Registrations

Registered Architect: Virginia, Delaware, California, Wisconsin, Tennessee, North Carolina, National Council of Architectural Registration Boards

Professional Affiliations

American Institute of Architects
Congress of the New Urbanism
Capitol Square Preservation Council
Richmond Commission of Architectural Review
Urban Land Institute
National Town Builders Association
Virginia Municipal League

Selected Projects

Virginia General Assembly Building

Richmond, Virginia | 415,000-square foot legislative facility on Capitol Square serving as the first purpose-built home for the General Assembly since Jefferson's Capitol.
AWARDS:

ENR MidAtlantic, Award of Merit
Golden Hammer, Best Overall

Reid's Row Rehabilitation

Richmond, Virginia | Rehabilitation of a landmark 1853 Italianate rowhouse, blending historic preservation with modern office functionality.

Middleburg Town Hall

Town of Middleburg, Virginia | New municipal building consolidating key public services and integrated into the town's historic district.
AWARD:
Waterford Foundation Special Recognition

Southampton County Courthouse Renovation & Expansion

Courtland, Virginia | Renovation and expansion of a historic courthouse, balancing modernization with preservation.

Charlotte County Courthouse

Charlotte County, Virginia | New courthouse focusing on functional efficiency, public safety, and architectural expression appropriate to the county's civic identity.

Westhampton Commons, Phases 1 & 2

Richmond, Virginia | Vibrant multi-building mixed-use development focused on contextual integration, walkability, and cohesive neighborhood character.
AWARD:
GRACRE Real Estate Award - Top Mixed-Use