Communications and the Art of Persuasion — Schedule

Winter 2026

CLEAR Learning
Generated November 3, 2026

This program will be delivered virtually. Program information will be emailed to each participant one week before the session. An eBook version of the program manual will be provided, which participants can either print or save to their desktop for easy access and review.

Completion Requirement: Participants must attend the live virtual session to receive completion. This session is not recorded, nor will a recording be provided.

Event Details:

The ability to communicate effectively is a key component of being a successful investigator.

Effective communication involves conveying your thoughts and positions to others as clearly, concisely, and unambiguously as possible and in turn receiving information that others are providing to you with as little distortion and misunderstanding as possible. Good communication skills can serve to improve operational efficiency and productivity in the workplace and increase the confidence level of employees. On the other hand, poor communication skills may cause message interpretation or misunderstanding and lead to roadblocks in getting desired information.

This session will introduce participants to key components for effective communication including preparation and delivery techniques, the use of language and physicality to get your point across, listening skills, and the use of presentation aids.

All times are in ET

DATE	START	END	PLATFORM	SESSION NAME
Dec 4, 2026	11:00 AM ET	2:00 PM ET	Zoom	Communications and the Art of Persuasion