About CoSIDA

About CoSIDA-

“Strategic Communicators for College Athletics”-

The College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA), now in its 57th year as an organization, was founded in 1957-making it the second oldest management association in intercollegiate athletics. Today, it is a vibrant 2,800-plus member national association comprised of the sports public relations, communications and information professionals throughout all levels of collegiate athletics in the United States and Canada.

CoSIDA has two primary missions as it seeks to have its profession, organization and membership take its rightful leadership role within the decision-making levels of the intercollegiate athletics community: 1) Help the communications and media relations professionals at all collegiate levels with professional development and continuing education as it relates to strategically dealing in an effective manner with the various issues, challenges and opportunities that now exist within the fast-paced and ever-changing communications environment. 2) Play a significant leadership and resource role (i.e. “Strategic Communicators for College Athletics”) within the overall enterprise of collegiate athletics thus helping the other management groups and their respective memberships deal with a set of communications-based issues that is the most complex and challenging in history. CoSIDA founded in the mid 1950’s the highly regarded “Academic All-America” program, unquestionably regarded as the premier awards program in intercollegiate athletics for honoring combined academic and athletic excellence. CoSIDA, which became an affiliated partner with NACDA (National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics in December of 2008, continues to fully manage and administer that program today.

CoSIDA’s Board of Director leadership is comprised of nine elected officer positions (President, 1st Vice President, 2nd Vice President, 3rd Vice President, three Past Presidents removed, a treasurer and secretary-Digest editor), along with 10 other Board appointees. These athletic PR professionals, along with an Executive Director and Director of External Affairs, compose the leadership group. In addition, the association has been strengthened since the summer of 2008 with the creation of additional management teams: the University Division Management Advisory Committee (UDMAC) and the College Division Management Advisory Committee (CDMAC). The UDMAC and CDMAC were created as part of the Board’s strategic initiatives in creating a more federated management structure within CoSIDA. The purpose of these management teams is to encourage divisional leadership groups to take a more direct and personal responsibility approach in regards to division-specific CoSIDA matters.

John Humenik, who has over 30 years of award-winning experience in the sports public relations and communications industry, serves as the Executive Director for CoSIDA. He was named to that post - as the first Executive Director in the history of the organization - in January 2008 and serves as the organization’s senior administrator working closely with its Board of Directors and staff in handling the organization’s day-to-day administration and operations as well as the development of short- and long-term strategic planning and initiatives. He also serves as the organization’s primary liaison with all of the nation’s collegiate sports governing bodies, sports management organizations and coaches associations.

Tell your story. Touch your fans. Everywhere.

With more than 60 hours of video content uploaded to YouTube every minute*, people are producing high-quality video content in new ways every day. The good news is, you don't have to be a major TV studio to get in the game.

NewTek Live Production Solutions allow you to produce HD quality television. No more complex hardware, software or process diagrams. Spend more time getting your story to your fans, and less time worrying about how to reach them.

- Volumes of signature looks to make each program distinct.
- High-capacity media storage for a high volume of project work.
- Flexibility to add up to eight camera angles from show, to show.
- Built-in live streaming at the push of a button.
- Stream, record, project and broadcast—all at once.

CoSIDA 2012-13 Sponsor Directory

Over the years, CoSIDA has depended heavily on the support of its corporate partners and sponsors to help provide a successful annual convention and yearly organizational funding support. Over the years, these partners have been tremendously supportive of CoSIDA and our missions. Despite continuing challenging economic times, these partners and sponsors- 58 organizations in total- responded with outstanding support. From an organizational standpoint we owe them our sincere thanks and hope that you will also say "thank you."

 refers to groups that are considered a 2012 convention and 2012-13 academic year supporter. No such notation refers to those groups who are convention specific sponsors.
