Re: Legislative Report – Session Week 9

Senate, House to Adjourn Today, Come Back Next Month for Budget

Legislative leaders said lawmakers will adjourn the regular session today and return in mid-April for a special session to try to pass a budget, having failed for a second year in a row to finish the Legislature's only required task within the scheduled 60-day timeline. While most lawmakers will return home, the Senate and House's presiding officers and budget chairmen will continue to try to work out topline numbers—the so-called “allocations” for how much lawmakers will allot to different parts of the budget—to prepare for conference committees that will have to close the roughly $1.4 billion gap between the chambers' proposed spending plans. House Speaker Daniel Perez, R-Miami, and Albritton both offered assurances that the two chambers would be able to come to an agreement before the start of the 2026-2027 fiscal year, beginning July 1. The impasse comes amid lingering tensions among chamber leaders and Gov. Ron DeSantis, stemming in part from last year's disputes over tax cuts and other priorities. Last session, budget disagreements pushed the legislative process past the 100-day mark through an extended session. Legislators are already expected to return to Tallahassee the week of April 20 for a special session called by the governor to redraw congressional districts following population changes since the 2020 Census. DeSantis has also floated another special session to consider a proposal to eliminate homestead property taxes, though that is yet to be formally decided.

A final report will be provided after the budget is signed in the coming months, in addition to any other actions taken by the Governor.

Compromise Immunity Caps Head to DeSantis

The House and Senate agreed Thursday on a compromise version of Rep. Fiona McFarland's proposal (HB 145) to increase the upper limit on payouts in negligence cases against the government, which will send the bill to the governor following a nearly unanimous House vote. The Senate had approved the bill earlier this week. Supporters of increasing the upper limit on how much local governments must pay in lawsuits have tried for years to do so, citing inflation and the cumbersome task of passing a claims bill in the Legislature to collect any amount above $200,000 for a single claimant and $300,000 per incident. The legislation approved Thursday would raise the limits to $350,000 per person and $500,000 per incident. The bill also shortens the time to present claims from 3 years to 18 months, with adjustments for certain cases. Sovereign immunity refers to the state government's authority to exempt itself from civil lawsuits, except for limited negligence claims against state and local governments in Florida. While injured parties can sue for damages and collect within the liability limit established by law, if they win awards over the cap, they must seek a claims bill to collect the rest from the Legislature, a fact McFarland reminded her House colleagues of each time they considered a claims bill on the floor. The bill has been one of the most heavily lobbied issues of this session.

Legislature Passes Change to Registration, Voting ID Requirements

The Legislature on Thursday gave final approval to new proof of citizenship requirements for registering to vote, sending the proposed changes to a supportive Gov. Ron DeSantis. Passage of the bill (HB 991) in both chambers on the second-to-last day of the session came in response to a national Republican push for more "integrity" in elections, with the measure mirroring the similar federal legislation dubbed the SAVE America Act. But it came over the objections of Democrats, who said the new requirements are likely to confuse—and possibly disenfranchise—far more legal citizen voters than the number of unauthorized immigrant would-be voters they'll stop. The changes, which won't go into effect until after the 2026 midterm elections in November, would require proof of U.S. citizenship to register, and change the types of identification voters have to have at the polls. Democrats have argued that voter fraud by non-citizens is extremely rare and during floor debate on Thursday challenged Sen. Erin Grall, the Republican Senate bill sponsor, to list cases where election fraud involving non-citizens had been prosecuted. Grall named just two cases of convictions in Florida but also pointed to a Florida Office of Election Crimes and Security report that said the office identified nearly 200 cases in 2025 of "likely noncitizens" who illegally registered or voted. But Grall said the goal should be to eliminate the problem. In addition to the citizenship requirements, the measure changes documents allowed as proof of identity at the polls. Among currently allowed documentation that would be no longer acceptable are student identification, and retirement home IDs. The League of Women Voters criticized the legislation. The bill passed the House on a 77-28, nearly party-line vote, not long after the Senate passed the bill on a similarly partisan 27-12 vote, readying the measure to go to the governor for approval. DeSantis said the changes would "further fortify our state as the leader in election integrity."

Legislature Backs Rules for Gold, Silver Coins as Legal Tender

Senators on Friday overwhelmingly advanced establishing rules for the use of gold and silver coins as legal tender in Florida. The bill (HB 1311) codifies regulations adopted by the state Department of Financial Services and the Office of Financial Regulation governing the use of the precious-metal coins. Lawmakers last year approved a separate law (HB 999) recognizing gold and silver coins as legal tender in the state beginning July 1, 2026. Under that 2025 law, qualifying gold and silver coins are exempt from sales tax, and government entities may—but are not required to—accept them electronically. That law also ensures that no individual or business can be compelled to accept the coins as payment. The new proposal was unanimously approved by the House on Thursday last week and passed the Senate on the following day, with Naples GOP Sen. Kathleen Passidomo as the only dissenting vote. It now heads to Gov. Ron DeSantis' desk.

Bill Requiring Local Gov'ts to Take Electronic Payments Goes to Governor

The Legislature has approved a measure requiring local governments statewide to accept electronic payments and provide residents with the option to pay certain fees online. The bill (HB 967), by Sarasota Republican Rep. James Buchanan, requires counties, municipalities and other local entities to accept credit cards, debit cards and other electronic funds transfers for obligations such as taxes, license fees, fines, civil penalties and court-ordered payments. The legislation also allows governments to add a surcharge to cover processing costs. The Senate version (SB 1612), sponsored by Indian Rocks Beach GOP Sen. Nick DiCeglie, ultimately aligned closely with the House bill, with DiCeglie describing the differences as “very minor.” The Senate unanimously voted to accept the House version last week. The proposal, which was unanimously cleared by the House last month, now goes to Gov. Ron DeSantis. If signed, the new requirements would take effect Jan. 1, 2027.

Bill Banning Local DEI Programs Passes House, Goes to Governor

The House on Tuesday gave final approval to legislation eliminating diversity, equity and inclusion programs in local governments, advancing a priority of Gov. Ron DeSantis. Representatives voted 77-37 to pass SB 1134, largely on party lines, after rejecting numerous amendments from several Democrats. GOP Reps. Hillary Cassel, Chip LaMarca, Jim Mooney, Will Robinson and Paula Stark also voted in opposition. The measure now goes to the governor's desk. The bill prohibits cities and counties from creating or maintaining DEI initiatives and will invalidate existing programs on Jan. 1. It also allows residents to file lawsuits against local governments if they believe they were discriminated against by such policies. DEI is defined as any effort to “manipulate or otherwise influence the composition of employees with reference to race, color, sex, ethnicity, gender identity, or sexual orientation other than to ensure that hiring is conducted in accordance with state and federal anti-discrimination laws.” The proposed law also bans “preferential treatment,” “special benefits,” and diversity training tied to those characteristics. However, the legislation allows programs promoting “equal opportunity” to continue and permits cultural observances such as Black History Month, as well as events like film festivals or arts exhibits highlighting specific communities. Democrats unsuccessfully offered 10 amendments seeking to modify the measure, arguing it was too vague. But during debate, Tallahassee Democrat Rep. Gallop Franklin noted that the changes could have unintended consequences, such as local contracts being awarded to the wealthiest, instead of the most qualified for the job. While Black didn't address that claim in his closing remarks, he affirmed that "DEI has to D-I-E."

Bill Allowing Recall of CDD Board Members Heads to Governor

The Legislature has unanimously approved a bill (SB 1180) allowing residents to recall elected members of a Community Development District Board of Supervisors, sending it to Gov. Ron DeSantis for consideration. The legislation was filed following controversy in Osceola County, where residents of the Concorde Estates Community Development District alleged the board spent nearly $1 million in 20 days without a formal vote. The measure would allow recall petitions against CDD board members for reasons including malfeasance, neglect of duty, drunkenness or incompetence, provided the official has served at least one-quarter of their term. Petitions would require signatures from at least 10% of registered electors and must be verified by the circuit court clerk before a special election is scheduled within 30 to 90 days. If a majority of voters approve the recall, the board member would be immediately removed and barred from serving on the district's board for two years.
