— EXCELLENCE IN BUSINESS —

LEARNING AND RECOGNITION IN ACTION

At the National Business Honor Society Collegiate (NBHS-C), we are passionate about recognizing excellence in business-related learning—wherever it occurs. NBHS-C honors high-achieving students in business, accounting, finance, marketing, entrepreneurship, and related fields, regardless of whether they are formally enrolled in a “school of business.”

Our story began with a simple belief: access to meaningful academic recognition should not be limited by program structure, institution type, or location. We believe education is a powerful tool that transforms lives and creates positive change. Discover how a straightforward extracurricular organization, like an NBHS-C chapter, can elevate student motivation, engagement, and performance.

Elevating Your Student's Success Through A NBHS-C Honor Society Chapter

Collegiate students today are faced with ever-growing demands, from excelling academically to preparing for an increasingly competitive job market. At the National Business Education Association (NBEA), we understand the critical importance of providing students with opportunities to go beyond the classroom. To that end, we are excited to announce the formation of a new collegiate-level National Business Honor Society, building on the success of our existing National Business Honor Society for secondary students.

WHY START AN HONOR SOCIETY FOR COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY STUDENTS?

Research consistently shows that students who engage in extracurricular activities and leadership roles experience notable improvements in their academic performance and professional success. Honor societies, in particular, provide a unique platform for students to develop essential skills, foster meaningful networks, and enhance their overall college experience.

THE ROLE OF EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES IN STUDENT SUCCESS

Extracurricular activities such as honor societies are much more than resume boosters; they play a vital role in student development. A study conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) found that students who participate in extracurricular activities tend to have higher grade point averages (GPAs) and are more likely to complete their degree programs compared to those who do not participate. Specifically, the NCES report highlighted that participation in structured organizations, like student clubs and honor societies, correlates with enhanced critical thinking, problem-solving, and leadership skills.

FORMING A COLLEGIATE CHAPTER

of the National Business Honor Society at your institution can profoundly impact your students. It offers them access to leadership roles, networking opportunities, and a community of like-minded individuals who share a passion for business education. As the evidence shows, students who engage in extracurricular activities and assume leadership positions are more likely to excel academically and succeed professionally.

By supporting the formation of collegiate honor society chapters, institutions invest in their students' long-term success—both in the classroom and beyond.
