

MEET JAKE FABER

Jake Faber, APCO, a Winsupply Company, brings both association experience and a supplier perspective to his candidacy for the PMAM Board of Directors. He previously served on the PMAWM Board of Directors and continues to support local and state associations through events, PAC activities, and other industry initiatives. Jake also participates annually in Capitol Day, helping educate Michigan lawmakers about issues affecting the multifamily housing industry.

Jake is seeking a position on the PMAM Board because he wants to have a voice in advocating for the industry while supporting the work of both PMAM and its local affiliates. He sees the need for greater incentives for owners to build and renovate properties, as well as increased public awareness and understanding of the multifamily housing industry, as important issues facing the association and its members.

Professionally, Jake brings experience in business operations and an understanding of profit and loss management. He also believes his perspective as a supplier partner can add a point of view that may not currently be represented on the Board. He describes himself as calm, cool, and collected and is ready to contribute wherever needed.

And, in Jake's own words, one additional qualification: "I will do anything Tracy tells me to do."
