COURSE DESCRIPTION

Morning Session

Wipe Out Your Oral Pathology Mysteries!

Step into the world of clinical oral pathology! This interactive course will sharpen your diagnostic eye and provide practical strategies for the conditions you actually see: the white patch that has been there for months, the ulcer that will not heal, or the gingival swelling. Through real-world case studies, you will develop a systematic approach to evaluating oral lesions.

Most importantly, you will know what to do next. Each case focuses on the decision that matters most in daily practice: monitor, treat, or refer. You will leave with greater confidence in your clinical judgment and practical guidance you can put to work with your very next patient.

Afternoon Session

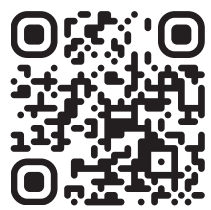

Substance Use Disorder and Prescription Writing

During this course, attendees will learn how to recognize chemical dependency in dental professionals, family members, friends, and patients, as well as appropriate steps to take when a substance use disorder is identified. The course will also address the dental professional's role and responsibilities related to opioid use and prudent prescription writing. Participants will receive two hours of continuing education credit, fulfilling the two-hour requirement for chemical dependency and prescription writing for one two-year cycle.
