Sabrina Uмбаugh

Leadership Development Fellow

As a Leadership Development Fellow with FMI based in Denver, Sabrina supports the development of industry leaders by integrating relevant research and industry best practices. She specializes in building training and consulting programs by developing new approaches for development within FMI's Leadership & Organizational Development practice. Sabrina is inspired by the art of solving organizational issues through a human-centered approach. She values communication as a skill and works to promote interpersonal awareness as a tool for larger organizational development.

Prior to joining FMI, Sabrina worked in culture transformation, executive coaching, and employee engagement practices. She pools her strategic thinking and passion for leadership development into her work with FMI. Her primary areas of specialization include corporate governance, executive coaching, and team leadership.
